

GRAND SLAM TOURNAMENTS

For US Open results, see pages 409-421.

Australian Open

Originally known as the Australasian Championships and renamed the Australian Championships in 1927, the tournament was held in Melbourne, Australia, in its inaugural year. It was also played twice in New Zealand, as well as in Adelaide, Brisbane, Perth, and Sydney before making its permanent home in Melbourne in 1972, three years after the tournament became an "Open" championship.

In 1977, two championships were played: one in January and one in December.

Since 1988, the Australian Open has been held at the National Tennis Centre at Flinders Park in Melbourne.

French Open

Although the French Championships began in 1891, the tournament was limited to French players and players enrolled in French clubs until 1925. It was played at St. Cloud's Stade Français in 1925, at Paris's Croix-Catelan in 1926, and back at the Stade Français in 1927 before moving to its permanent home, Roland Garros, in Paris.

In 1968, the French Championships became the first Grand Slam event to become an "Open" championship, but it was closed to contract professionals in 1972.

Wimbledon

The following record indicates the final match by which the championship was decided. From 1877 to 1921, the men's singles was decided on a Challenge Round system, the previous year's winner standing until a winner of the so-called All Comer's event qualified to challenge. The same system applied in the women's singles from 1886 to 1921 and in the men's doubles from 1886 to 1921.

It never applied in the men's and women's mixed doubles. In those years the presence of the previous year's winner in the last match meant that the title was decided in a Challenge Round.

The Championships were staged at the All England Club, Worple Road, Wimbledon, from 1877 to 1921, when the club moved to Church Road, Wimbledon. The men's doubles was played from 1879 to 1883 at Oxford. Partial seeding by placing overseas competitors was introduced in 1924, full merit seeding in 1927. Wimbledon became "Open" in 1968, but it was closed to contract professionals in 1972.
